BETTER LIGHT FOR BETTER SIGHT MEANS BETTER HOMEWORK, TOO

Here's one thing you can do to help your child do better homework and so get higher marks in school.

Check his study lamp now. If it's a two-socket lamp, be sure it's equipped with at least two 60 or two 75 watt bulbs. Three socket lamps need three 40's or three 60's.

Best of all, give him an IES Better Sight lamp (as shown above and sold by your electrical appliance dealer) and make sure it has the size bulb it was designed to take . . . either a 100 or 150 watt.

Remember, electric rates are lowest in history. Good light was never so cheap.

Most Famous Stoic

Epictetus was a Greek Stoic philosopher who lived approximately between the years 50 and 120. He was born a slave in Phrygia, banished from Rome by Domitian and taught philosophy in Epirus. The nobility and moral earnestness of the man and simplicity of his style have made him a favorite with many not otherwise interested in the subject which he taught and of which he wrote.

Canada's Status

Canada, like Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, is a self-governing part of the British empire or Commonwealth of Nations. She pays no taxes to the mother country and is not bound to render her military help in time of war. Her governor-general is appointed by the king on the advice of the Canadian ministry, and has a theoretical veto power over legislation. The supreme judicial authority of the British empire is the judicial committee of the Privy council in London, before which appeals may be brought (in the form of a petition to the crown) from consular courts and courts of vice-admiralty and from the courts of India and every British dominion. India has a limited amount of self-government with two native legislative chambers. Other portions of the empire consist of crown colonies and protectorates.

Washington Still a Forest When First Congress Met

Washington still was just a forest on the Potomac "some place between the mouths of the Eastern Branch and the Connogochegue." The United States was a government on paper. It had a Constitution, freshly ratified, writes Robert C. Albright in the Washington Post. It lacked a President, a legislature and a judiciary, all duly provided in aforesaid document.

In New York a small group of perplexed gentlemen impatiently were trying to muster a quorum for the first congress under that Constitution. The quorum wouldn't muster. It looked as though it never would. It was in fact, March 4, 1789, a sizeable span back across the arc of years that have since linked 75 congresses in unbroken progression and cemented a loose confederation into a power among nations.

But the gray dawn of that day in 1789 was not an auspicious start for a daring young government. Faint words penned into a faded old journal tell the story of that first meeting of the first congress.

"The number not being sufficient to constitute a quorum, they adjourned from day to day—"

Out of 22 elected senators only 8 were present. Of 59 representatives but 14 were on hand. From "day to day" stretched into weeks. It was 27 days before the house could count a quorum. It was another six days before the senate could proceed.

Fox-Squirrel's Diet

The diet of the fox-squirrel ranges from crow's eggs to muskmellon, although it will live almost exclusively on various kinds of nuts if they can be had. Cutting down of nut-bearing trees has helped crows by limiting the squirrel population. When squirrels become too plentiful, they will at times raid truck gardens and cause heavy damage. It is better, according to the National Wildlife federation, for hunters to harvest the surplus of any species of wildlife than for it to increase beyond the limits of its natural food supply.

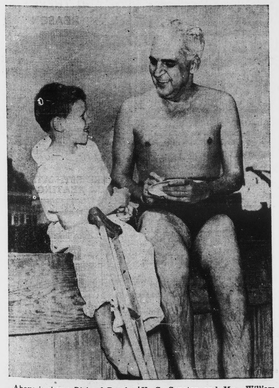
The county board of supervisors met Wednesday.

Would You Autograph My Seashell? Sure, Said McNutt



Above is shown Richard Brooks, age nine, of Arlington, Va., who, while vacationing with his parents near Atlantic City, obtained an autograph in an unusual way, to Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, together with his wife and daughter Louise, recently were the week-end guests of U. S. Senator and Mrs. William H. Smathers of New Jersey, at Margate. After Mr. McNutt had a dip in the turf, Dick asked him to autograph a seashell he had found and got it. Administrator McNutt was recently added to the President's Cabinet for the period of the emergency.
